Rachel is a member of TGF's Commercial Litigation group. She has a broad litigation practice that includes contract disputes, shareholder disputes, estates litigation, construction matters and general corporate commercial litigation. She has appeared on behalf of clients at all levels of court in Ontario as well as several administrative tribunals, and has appeared before arbitrators on mandates of varying size and complexity.

Rachel's diverse litigation practice is bolstered by her practical, flexible approach to advocating for her clients' interests and her affinity for complex legal situations requiring creative solutions. She is a highly-responsive, confident litigator, and is known for quickly building open and trusted relationships with clients as they face significant legal challenges.

Originally from the Caribbean, Rachel completed her undergraduate degree in the US before moving to Canada to pursue her legal education. Prior to joining TGF, Rachel practiced commercial litigation at a full-service law firm in Toronto. Rachel is committed to professional development, including supporting the advancement of early-career lawyers. She is involved in the firm's student hiring committee and acts as a summer student mentor. Rachel also serves as coordinator for the Amicus Program for the Ontario Estates and Commercial list, supporting the Court in the appointment of volunteer Amicus counsel when requested.

Representative mandates
