Stephanie is an associate in the firm's commercial litigation practice group and maintains a broad practice including contractual and commercial disputes, shareholder disputes, property disputes, estates, corporate and construction litigation.

Stephanie previously practiced at an insurance defence boutique, where she gained extensive experience handling a variety of litigation matters and developed a strong foundation in advocacy, risk assessment, and dispute resolution. She also gained experience at a boutique commercial litigation firm, where she expanded her practice to encompass a wide range of commercial disputes, including contractual, shareholder, business, and other complex civil litigation matters.

Stephanie holds a Bachelor of Science in Kinesiology, a background that has equipped her with strong analytical and problem-solving skills that complement her legal practice. Her thoughtful and results-oriented approach enables her to effectively guide clients through challenging legal issues while remaining focused on achieving practical and efficient outcomes.

Stephanie is committed to delivering exceptional client service and advocating zealously on behalf of her clients both inside and outside the courtroom.
